Babies crawl, little children run and skip and champion runners sprint faster than the wind. But for Olympic champion Wilma Rudolph, it wasn't as easy as that.

Rudolph was born in Tennessee, USA, the 20th of 22 children in her family. She had polio before she was six. Other children wore kneepads for sport, but Rudolph wore a leg brace until she was nine. Nothing was too difficult for Rudolph. She worked hard to get well, and by the time she was nine, she could walk again. Soon, she started to run.

Rudolph trained hard and at the age of 16, she participated in the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne, Australia. She was the youngest runner in the US team and she won a bronze medal.

Four years later, at the Olympics in Rome, Italy, Rudolph and the US team won the 100-metre relay and she won the 100- and 200-metre sprints. She was the first woman ever to win three Olympic gold medals and she became famous around the world. From polio victim to world champion, Wilma Rudolph was a legendary athlete.

The Castle

Dunnottar Castle is one of the most impressive castles in Scotland. It stands at the top of a high cliff with the North Sea on three sides.

Dunnottar's History

Dunnottar Castle is more than 800 years old and it has got an important place in Scottish history. Mary Queen of Scots, Charles II and other kings and queens stayed there. In 1651, the English tried to capture the castle. Inside, there were only 69 men to defend Dunnottar. Because of the castle's position on the cliff, there wasn't a good way to attack and Dunnottar didn't fall to the English for more than eight months.

Important Tips for Visitors

- Leave your car in the car park and walk on the path to the castle. Part of the path is steep and narrow, so wear good shoes for walking.
- You can buy a travel guide at the ticket office to learn more about the castle's history.
- Scotland has got a cool climate, but the sun can be strong, so visitors should bring water, a hat and some sun cream.
- Some of the rooms in the castle are dark. It is a good idea to bring a torch.
